A Day in the Life - UN Volunteer in the field for UNICEF, Afghanistan

UN Volunteer Salma is an Information Management Assistant, monitoring the UNICEF's cash transfer programme in Herat, Afghanistan. She shares her determination to alleviate suffering in her community, especially for children, during the pandemic.

The UNICEF Representative in Afghanistan, Aboubacar Kampo, says: UN Volunteers, especially these newly recruited women, bring much positive energy and efficiency to the team.

She is among 27 UN Volunteers serving with UNICEF Afghanistan. The percentage of women UN Volunteers in the UNICEF country office has risen to 33 percent. The dynamism they bring in their interaction with people has made a huge impact. Watch a Day in the Life video of Salma below.
