Online Volunteering? Technology has changed the way we volunteer. UNV has invested in technology and radically restructured its Online Volunteering service to deliver on its commitment to ensure the broadest possible participation by all members of society in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals. Together with UNV, development actors can leverage technology to co-create solutions that will contribute to tackling the world’s most important issues. UNV’s goal with the new website is to provide organizations and volunteers across the globe with an even faster, more inclusive and more appealing way to connect with each other and to join forces for peace and development worldwide. Together with the redesigned website, UNV also launched three additional services for global companies, countries and volunteer involving organizations.
